Dr. Henry Martin Tupper

Dr. Henry Martin Tupper, foudner of Shaw University, was a native of Monson, Mass. His boyhood days were passed upon his father's farm in the outskirts of the town. His parents were not Christians, and he neither attended Church nor Sunday School. Though he only attended the district school for a short term during the winter, he had an uncrushable thirst for knowledge. During his spare hours, Tupper read books and papers which he occasionally picked up and while a mere lad developed firm convictions on the issue of slavery.

At the age of 18, Tupper entered Monson Academy to prepare himself for college. While attending the Academy, he was converted.

Upon leaving the Academy, he enrolled in Amherst College. Graduating in 1859, he entered Newton Theological Institution and was graduated in 1862.

Shortly after his graduation, Tupper enlisted in the 'Federate Army as a soldier. He was assigned to the Army of the Potomac about the time of the battles of South Mountain and Antietam. In one battle in which he participated, a shell burst so near his face that it scorched his flesh, and though fellow soldiers on both sides were killed by the flying pieces, Tupper was providentially spared to do his great life's work.

Although a private soldier, he was constantly engaged in Christian work, holding meetings among the men, writing letters for the sick and wounded and often performing the duties of Chaplain. During these years, he also found many opportunities of becoming acquainted with the colored people who flocked to the camps, and of studying their condition and needs.

A few weeks after the cessation of hostilities, and previous to his discharge from the army, he received a commission from the American Baptist Home Mission Society to go south as a missionary to the "freedmen" and to select his own field. After some deliberation he decided upon Raleigh as a central point for missionary operations. He was discharged from the army July 14, 1865, and on the first of the following October started with his wife for Raleigh.

Upon his arrival, Dr. Tupper called on the pastor of the Baptist Church, presented his credentials and made known his mission. At that early date co-operation was not expected. It is true that hostilities had ceased, but the bitterness that war had engendered was not easily overcome and several years elapsed before much fraternal feeling was developed.

Without waiting for further recognition he at once commenced his work among the colored people, whose condition he found pitiable in the extreme. They were poor and destitute; many of them were refugees who had followed the army, and were literally houseless and homeless. Having been in the army, he was especially able to aid them in procuring food and clothing from the Freedmen's Bureau, and at one time had upon his list 175 persons over 75 years of age whom he regularly assisted in obtaining "rations."

December 1, 1865, dates the humble beginning of the educational work of which the present Shaw University is the outgrowth.

Shaw University was started in a very humble way in a Negro cabin on the outskirts of the city. Under the leadership of Founder Tupper, the institution in spite of its humble beginning, grew to be one of the strong institutions for the training of Negroes in the country.

On the 12th of November, 1893, Dr. Tupper died after a brilliant career as servant of his Negro friends. His remains lie on the campus of the institution he founded.

(The above is a revision of Whitted's section on Tupper in his History of the Negro Baptists of N. C.)

Founder's Day Speaker Announced

The Rev. John Dillingham, pastor of the Faith Presbyterian Church of Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa., will be the principal speaker for the 79th founder's day exercises of Shaw University, to be observed Friday, November 17.

Memorial services will be conducted at the grave of the founder, at 10:45 a.m., and the main service will follow in the Greenleaf Memorial Chapel.

Aside from the address by the Rev. Mr. Dillingham, President Robert P. Daniel will give the annual administrative founder's day message.

The Rev. Mr. Dillingham is a graduate of Shaw University, Yale University and Crozer Theological Seminary. He was a delegate to the World's YMCA Conference, held in Finland in 1926. He has served as associate director of the National Emergency Peace Campaign and Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

As a religious and civic leader, his present affiliations aside from his pastorate include: membership in the General Council of the Presbytery of Philadelphia; member of the Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Branch of the N.A.A.C.P.; co-chairman of the Department of Race Relations, Philadelphia Federation of Churches, and vice president of the Germantown-Chestnut Hill Ministerial Association.

National Leaders Comment on Shaw's Contribution

It is gratifying to note the continued growth and influence of Shaw University, the seventy-ninth anniversary of which occurs on November 17, 1944.

This Institution has long occupied a prominent place in the educational life of the Negro in North Carolina and the Nation and this long period of service has been characterized by the instilling of fine ideals into the minds and hearts of its student body and of splendid leadership to the Negro race.

Shaw University has existed, grown and developed because it has made for itself a place in the educational system of North Carolina and those who were responsible for its establishment, and who have contributed generously to its progress, are due a debt of gratitude from all the people of North Carolina.

I congratulate the University and those who direct its affairs, upon the observance of this, the seventy-ninth anniversary of so fine an Institution. CLYDE R. HOEY.

(Clyde R. Hoey is a former governor of North Carolina; now a member of the U. S. Senate.)

Shaw University has made a singularly notable contribution to American life by the example she has set of a dogged determination in moments of crisis to employ to the utmost the resources immediately available to her. I shall always recall with profoundest admiration the story of Shaw's early years when her leaders found in the very soil of the campus the clay with which to construct her buildings. Even more enduringly fixed in my affection is the response of the sons and daughters of Shaw and her friends during the critical years of the early nineteen thirties.

The spirit that made these things possible is the spirit that made America possible and that will make possible a greater America. The hour through which we now pass as a nation is a critical one. We need, then, to be reminded that the most abiding help will come from no outside quarter. It will come from the resources implanted in our own midst—in our own hearts, in the hearts of our fellowmen, and in the heart of God who has walked with strong, brave men across the ages, who has strengthened the hands of Shaw across the years, and who walks among the American people today.

—Wm. Stuart Nelson.

(William Stuart Nelson is dean of the School of Religion, Howard University, Washington, D. C., and a former president of Shaw University.)

As a citizen of Raleigh who has been familiar with the record of Shaw University for many years, I congratulate the student body, the alumni, the faculty and trustees, as the institution enters upon its 80th year.

For a long number of years I lived just across the street from Shaw University and had the opportunity as a near neighbor to know the fine service it was rendering, not only in the class rooms, but in its spirit of progress and inculcation of sound principles. Its influence extended far beyond its campus and to the fine cordial relations between the races in our Capital city much credit is due to Shaw University. All of Raleigh and North Carolina rejoices in its growth and great service to the state. I wish for it long life and continued usefulness.

—Josephus Daniels.

(Josephus Daniels is editor of the "News and Observer," Raleigh, and former assistant secretary of the U. S. Navy.)

Religious training is essential in education for life. The contribution Shaw University has made in this respect during the past seventy-five years is reflected in the fine group of men and women throughout the country who, by reason of the fine Christian influence that predominates at Shaw University, merit the positions of leadership and trust they occupy. Many outstanding pioneers in education and the professions received their training at Shaw University—which was founded by the late Henry Martin Tupper—and the service they have rendered the race and nation cannot be overestimated. While it is to be regretted that circumstances forced the institution to close some of its professional schools, the University nevertheless affords abundant opportunities for growth in Christian leadership and service.

With its present dynamic leadership, Shaw University will continue to reflect in all of its activities a growing capacity for the full development of intellect and character. In her graduates, the race may expect that degree of efficiency and Christian development that will equip them for positions of leadership in the various activities of life.

Shaw University

Office of the President

Dear Alumni and Friends:

Shaw University continues to make significant progress. We have opened this year with an enrollment of over 520, the largest in the history of the Institution. In fact, our facilities are greatly over-taxed to accommodate this over-capacity; we could not admit over 200 young women, due to the lack of room.

We know that you will be pleased with the continued improvement of our physical plant. The kitchen has been completely renovated; additional rooms in Estey Hall have been reconditioned; the front of Leonard Building has been painted, and new entrance constructed; the exterior woodwork of the Library, the Gymnasium and Science Hall was repainted; additional sidewalks laid on the campus; and the brick walk in front of the school on South Street has been replaced by a cement walk.

The Institution was pleased to receive approximately $13,000 as its share in the United Negro College Campaign. This will mean a great deal to us and we wish to thank our friends for their fine support of this project. Another campaign will be held next Spring.

The Seventy-ninth Anniversary of Founder's Day will be held on Friday, November 17. May all of our alumni and friends join with us that day wherever they may be in a prayer of thanksgiving for the splendid growth of our Institution. You can contribute to its continued development by an annual donation.

Very cordially yours,

ROBERT P. DANIEL, President.

From the Alumni President

To the Alumni and Former Students of Shaw

The executive committee of the General Alumni Association wants to accomplish two things during the present administration.

The first is an immediate objective:—to get every alumnus and former student of Shaw acquainted with every other alumnus and former student. To that end we are carrying an alumni section in each issue of the "Shaw Bulletin" featuring the names, addresses, and profession of each member of the Shaw family.

In another section you will find a list of persons who have accepted a place on our publicity staff to represent their community in keeping the Alumni Headquarters informed of names, addresses, and occupation of each Shawite in their town.

If your name and community are not listed in this issue of the "Bulletin," you will render the entire Shaw family a great service by calling a few of the Shawites together in your community and appointing a representative to get and give the Alumni Headquarters the information requested above. The information your representative sends in will appear in subsequent issues of the "Bulletin."

Remember that we are interested in including in our Shaw family former students as well as graduates of the school.

We are more than pleased with the great progress Shaw is making under the leadership of its efficient president, Dr. Robert P. Daniel, and the efficient staff of workers gathered around him. It is enough to inspire every alumnus and friend of our school.

If there is any suggestion you have to offer in strengthening our relationship in support of our Alma Mater, don't hesitate in sending it in to the Alumni Headquarters, Shaw University, Raleigh, N. C.

Fraternally yours,

G. E. CHEEK, President.

NEW DEAN

The Rev. Wm. R. Strassner, dean of the School of Religion of Bishop College, Marshall, Texas, has been appointed dean of the Shaw School of Religion to succeed Dean J. L. Tilley, who recently resigned to accept the presidency of the Florida Normal and Industrial Institute.

Mr. Strassner, before going to Bishop College in 1938, pastored in Charlottesville, Va. (1929-38). He is a graduate of Virginia Union University and Andover Newton Theological Seminary.

Rev. Strassner will not reach Raleigh before December.

Shaw Dean Appointed to Head Florida School

Dean John L. Tilley, of the Shaw University School of Religion, has resigned from his position at Shaw University to accept an appointment as President of the Florida Normal and Industrial College, St. Augustine, Fla., according to announcement of President Robert P. Daniel at Shaw at a University banquet, Thursday, August 17, 1944, in the University dining hall.

During Dean Tilley's seventeen years of service at Shaw University he has served as professor in the Theological School, helped organize and became the first Dean of the Shaw University School of Religion and acted in various other capacities including the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences on three separate occasions.

Outstanding among his achievements have been occasional contributions to various Religious and Educational publications and supervision in the organization of a Ministers Training Conference which has grown into the highly regarded Annual Ministers Institute at Shaw University. He has been associated with the development of Religious Education among Baptists in the State of North Carolina and has served as general supervisor of the Shaw University Department of Religious Promotion during the entire existence of the department.

Dean Tilley received his educational preparation at the North Carolina College for Negroes at Durham, Shaw University, and Chicago University where on various occasions he has served as fellow in educational workshops and other departments.

During 1931 Dean Tilley refused a fellowship to study and travel in Europe in order that he might help hold together his Alma Mater which at that time was undergoing a period of stress incident to the resignation of President Joseph L. Peacock. During the period between the resignation of Mr. Peacock and the election of William Stewart Nelson as the first Negro President of Shaw University, Dean Tilley was more or less President pro tem. The newly-elected President of the Florida Normal and Industrial College began his new duties on September 1, 1944.

The increase recommended by President P. A. Bishop in his annual message to the 77th annual session held October 31 through November 2 in Elizabeth City, N. C., was unanimously approved by approximately 500 enthusiastical messengers representing every section of the state.

Formal Opening Exercises

An address by Dr. E. E. Toney of Oxford, highlighted formal opening exercises of the 79th school year at Shaw University held Friday, September 22. The service was held in the Greenleaf Memorial Chapel.

Speaking on "Leadership for Tomorrow," Dr. Toney urged the more than 500 new and returning students to think of themselves first as Americans and then as Negroes. Leaders of tomorrow must not be disturbed over the question of what nation or race will rule the world, the speaker said, but must insist "that the world is ruled on the basis of brotherhood."

Dr. Toney is an alumnus of Shaw and a physician of Oxford, North Carolina.

Scripture was read by the Reverend J. W. Larkins, A.M.E. Zion Elder of the Raleigh district. The invocation was delivered by the Reverend L. C. Riddick, director of religious education of the General Baptist State Convention. The Reverend O. L. Sherrill, president of the Theological Alumni Association, pronounced the benediction.

Greetings were extended by the Reverend C. C. Scott, pastor of the St. Paul A.M.E. Zion Church, and Dr. J. B. Davis, Fuquay Springs physician.
